

I was originally planning to do the food ordering app but found it is still very different for me to understand all the code source I could find online and make my own one. Since that is the case, I followed a tutorial and made an app with array and random display of information array. This app is called FunFact, and it will display different fun facts once click the button. It used override, and array, and random selection. I think it will help me to build the restaurant ordering app because it provides me a good view of making a complete app, with a feature the app could serve. Now I feel more comfortable putting together my food ordering app.
